Meet the candidates, week 9: “How can D1 help the city hit its housing goals?”

The Richmond District can play a critical role in helping San Francisco meet its housing goals by advocating for and supporting the creation of diverse housing opportunities, including affordable housing. We need to cut through the bureaucratic red tape that has historically stalled housing creation and reform zoning laws to allow for density along transit corridors.

I will work to reform the permitting process for housing creation and push for initiatives that both preserve existing housing, bring neighbors together in the vision for the future of housing for the neighborhood, and meet the growing need for housing options. Together, we can create a more inclusive and thriving community in D1 and across San Francisco.
