District 11 Meet the Candidate Week 11: What would be your first moves as supervisor to boost the district's local business vitality?

The main takeaway is that the vacancy tax is not working and has become a burden on those who are actively trying to rent their storefront. And we need to reevaluate it. And without adequate funding or investment to some of these empty storefronts we may not see the change. We need to:

- Expand the Vacant to Vibrant grant program for pop ups to district level corridors, not just downtown.
- Continue the First Year Free program which waives the cost of initial registration fees, initial license fee. And I know this because I personally have attended Excelsior Action Group (EAG) meetings and they have specifically helped places like Stay Cute Salon to open and even open a second location, as well as Talas Wine, Love and Light Yoga SF and the Halfway Club.
- Support shared spaces. For this to happen we have to secure funding for assisting in cleaning and upgrading storefronts which is necessary for some of the properties in the district.
