

There's good reason that Portola is known as "San Francisco's Garden District" - beautifully verdant (the Green Between!) with flower & vegetable gardens, amazing small businesses and close knit communities- it's a special place for residents.

However, like a lot of D9, there are major concerns about safety with recurrent thefts, assaults, and hate crimes. Unfortunately, often residents feel like these concerns and their needs are neglected. As supervisor, I commit to being a partner in City Hall for the community. I want all residents to have an easy pathway through my office to City Hall- it's important that the City invests in the Portola with the same vigor that its residents do and ensure that legacy businesses thrive, new ones feel confident opening shop, and law enforcement follows through with community supportive and culturally competent response to crime victims."
