

I would not commit to closing or merging schools for 2030 today.

Our focus should be on retention, stability, and improving learning environments for all children. Strong relationships between students, educators, and families are foundational to student success, and disruption should only be considered if it clearly improves outcomes.

Any decision must be driven by data, measured outcomes, and transparent equity analysis — not just cost savings. Before any vote, I would want a meaningful community engagement plan that includes students, families, and educators and ensures every child has a pathway to success. It is our moral and ethical obligation to serve every child.

We should also prioritize excellence and enrollment so more families choose and stay in SFUSD. Retaining families strengthens outcomes, stabilizes funding, and helps communities thrive.
