

As a former 7th grade science teacher and lifelong educator, I believe the most important relationship in any school system is between a teacher and a student.

My number one priority is improving student outcomes by ensuring every classroom is led by a qualified and effective teacher. Teachers need consistent support, strong instructional systems, and the stability to focus on their students, not uncertainty about budgets or operations.

After years of fiscal mismanagement, we have begun to stabilize SFUSD's finances and operations. We cannot go backward. My focus is making sure we sustain that progress so every student, in every neighborhood, has access to the high-quality education they deserve.